Short on Groceries? Budget Saving Options

Families often choose between paying bills or buying food. If a limited budget makes it difficult for you to buy food, ask about these options:

SNAP. The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program helps eligible families buy fruit, vegetables, bread, cereal, meat, fish, poultry and milk.

Local Food Banks. Some food banks distribute prepared boxes with a variety of foods. Others allow you to walk through the warehouse and fill a box yourself. Food banks are a good source for canned goods.

Local Farmers Market. Markets and veggie trucks are sprouting up in many neighborhoods, providing produce that can often be purchased with SNAP. Plant a simple garden which can be grown in pots if you have an apartment.

WIC. The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children provides services for low-income, pregnant, breast-feeding and postpartum women and their children (up to age 5) who are at risk for poor nutrition.

Relieve stress, find solutions. “When employees come to me, struggling to afford basic needs such as food, we go over food options and also schedule time to go over their budget,” said Health Ring, Success Coach (Marion ERN). “We try to do a lot of things off the top of our heads like budgeting and underestimate the toll it takes on our mental health. I find that talking with people about financial issues can help relieve their stress.” Source: Ohio ERN; Michigan ERN

Smiles and Tears! Coach Helps Find Dental Funds

Recently an ERN member employee was in desperate need of dental work, but didn't have enough savings.

Employee success. Through his Success Coach, the employee found that he was eligible for a ERN Hardship Loan through Kalsee Credit Union. Together they completed the application, and, within two days, he was approved. He was in tears at the thought of no longer being in pain and was extremely grateful.

Difficult, even with coverage. Dental insurance often covers preventative treatment, but often only pays half of restorations costs, and some procedures not at all. There may also be a coverage waiting period. “Hardship and Savings loans are one way employees can bridge that gap for out-of-pocket costs,” said Kelli Adams, Success Coach (Southwest Michigan ERN). “During the application process, we go over a budget based on the employee's income and bills, making sure an affordable solution is achieved.”

Are you able to concentrate? Your employer understands that your health is important, and your Success Coach can help you search for care including medical, dental, optical, mental health, or substance abuse treatment. “When you are in constant pain due to health issues, it makes doing your job effectively nearly impossible,” said Kelli.

Community health centers and programs. Health centers provide quality care and treat individuals based on income. There may also be special community funding programs. Ask your Success Coach for options available to you. Source: Michigan ERN
